MAN NAMED BROWN—Pizza parol operator Jim Foster of Langley, Va., carries two of his specialities for delivery to "someone named Brown" which is the name used by nearby based CIA operatives who order pizzas under this "cover" name to maintain their anonymity. Foster stands before a mural that needles the clandestine activities of the CIA and said, "It's real tough sometimes. They all call in orders under the name Brown." All the "Browns" drive up in black cars when they pick up the pizzas, Foster observed. Not all the "Browns" order similar pizzas.
